Online Classes will be graded the following way:
Module (Online Instruction and Tutorials) 50% (Formative)
Writing Assessments (Discussion) 15% (Summative)
Course Activity 10% (Summative)
Post Unit Test 25% (Summative)
(If a course does not have a Course Activity then discussion is 25%)
These grades will be calculated in Edmentum to be the Course Grade.

Final Exam Grade
The Final Exam grade for report cards is based on the Edmentum’s “End of Semester Test” for One credit courses the Final Exam grade will be the average of Course A and Course B “End of Semester Tests”

Checking your Grade
When a student looks at their class they will see something called Current Grade. That is the grade based on the work that has been completed so far. It does not account for the work that has not been completed yet. In order to get a more accurate idea of your grade, you will need to average the current grade and your percentage of completion. When these two numbers are averaged you will have a better idea of your actual grade at the time. Here is an example:

This is the home screen of a student’s Edmentum account.

For this student their current grade for Semester B of English 11 is an A, 100%.
However, this is not their actual grade since that is only based on what they have done.

Here you can see they have only done 13% of the course so far. Therefore, if you average 100% and 13% together the actual grade is a 56% which is an E.

Important: Due Dates
- Section A Final Exam - 7/22 @ 9am and 11am if you have a second course
- Marking Period 1-7/22 Section A or 50% of a 1 section Course
- Section B Final Exam and other Courses Final Exam - 7/22 @ 9am and 11am if you have a second course
- Marking Period 2-8/13 Section B or 100% of a 1 Section Course
How to stay aware of due dates:

There are several things you can check to make sure you know when your work is due. While you should be constantly working throughout the entirety of the course, there is a deadline for when each class must be at 100% completion. For semester long courses students will need to be 50% through the course by the end of Marking Period 1. For courses that are have a semester A and semester B section, typically core courses, they must be at 100% complete by the end of the quarter the teacher will post the deadlines for all courses on the board and send them to your messages folder in Edmentum. Additionally, you can see the final (100% complete) due date on your Edmentum. Take a look:

The messages button is where you can check for important information from the teacher such as deadlines, assignment changes, and any other useful information that might help you be successful. Be sure to check this regularly.

Each class will have a pacing icon and due date posted in the bottom right corner of that class. This due date indicates when the class must be at 100% complete. This does not account for other deadlines like being at 50% complete which your teacher will likely let you know about through a class message. Be sure to check those messages!
